WATER UTILITY SERVICE

When will service be restored?

Tropical Storm Helene severely damaged the production and distribution system of the City of Asheville's water system. Extensive repairs are required to treatment facilities, underground and aboveground water pipes, and to roads that have washed away. Repairs are on-going, as of 10/4 crews have completed repairs on the 8-inch water line at North Fork Water Treatment Plant, restoring water service to customers in Laurel Ridge, areas in the vicinity of North Fork Right Fork Road, and Allen Mountain. Although providing a precise timeline is impossible, it is important to note that restoring service to the full system could potentially take weeks. As repairs progress, water service will return to some areas before others, based solely on the level of damage to the system.
